The People's Panel Team

You said about...Safeguarding

In December/ January, we asked about:

- Characteristics of victims and abusers
- Awareness of different forms of abuse
- Safeguarding priorities
- Reporting abuse

68% of you said some people are more likely to be affected by abuse than others:

- elderly people
- children and young people
- those with disabilities
- people with mental health issues

You feel some people are more at risk of becoming abusers:

- bullies
- drug users/ those with alcohol issues
- people with mental health issues
- controlling people

You said you thought vulnerable adults are most at risk from family members (67%) or partners (54%); and that adults are more likely than children to be abused by paid carers.

Vulnerable children, on other hand are more at risk from family members (81%); 59% said a parent particularly. Less than a third said a stranger is a likely perpetrator against either adults or children.

We asked what forms of abuse you had heard of. Mate crime was the least known. Mate crime is when a vulnerable person is abused by someone they think is their friend. People with learning disabilities are often the target.

From a list of statements about safeguarding and abuse of vulnerable adults and children, the overwhelming majority of you agreed that safeguarding is the responsibility of everyone, and that people need to know the signs of abuse to look for. A small number of you said you thought abuse is not a big problem in Hull (6%), or where you live in the city (20%).

Receiving help to recognise or prevent abuse and making it easier to report were your priorities for safeguarding.

We then asked about reporting abuse. Having proof of abuse affects whether, and to whom you are likely to report, unsurprisingly. With proof you are more likely to report to the police or social services.

Only a very small proportion said you would do nothing. You said that causing more trauma for the victim and fear or trauma for your own family were reasons for not reporting concerns.

Other reasons included:

- fear of repercussions or retaliation
- concern if suspicions were unfounded
- making the situation worse for the victim

Finally, we asked you to tell us how much you agreed or disagreed with a number of statements about safeguarding. You agreed that you would not hesitate to report abuse (72%). You were least likely to agree that slavery no longer exists in this country (3.1%) or that domestic abuse is only about violence (3.2%).

Getting residents online

Hull City Council is working with KCOM on a pilot in Orchard Park to help customers access services over the internet, particularly reporting or paying the Council for things. The pilot will help us understand what makes the most difference to getting people online.

Free wi-fi access is available between 7am-7pm in the following places (you should take your own internet-enabled phone, tablet etc, although a small number of laptops are available for loan for use within Parks and MacMillan Children's Centres)

- Orchard Centre
- Orchard Shopping Centre
- Parks and MacMillan Children's Centres

In addition 150 households will get internet access in the home for 6 months free of charge, with some households being loaned a laptop for the duration of the pilot. The pilot has a small number of households online already, and will be extended to some further areas of Orchard Park later in the year. Residents should look out for a letter, asking for participants.

Residents can also go to The Bungalow at 53 Clanthorpe which will be staffed by KCOM and Unity Training. There they can get advice and help getting online.

The centre will be open Tuesday - Thursday from 10am to 2pm each week.

Hull: Embracing its Maritime History

A new, heritage-led regeneration plan: Hull: Yorkshire's Maritime City is being developed, with multi-million pound funding bids being submitted. If successful the plan will reaffirm and celebrate Hull's role as a world-leading maritime city and tell the story of Hull's relationship with the sea and the world. Plans could include the much-loved Maritime Museum being improved, with revamped galleries, public spaces and more of its world-class treasures on show. Both the Arctic Corsair and the Spurn Lightship could receive much needed conservation along with rejuvenated exhibitions with improved accessibility. Councillor Stephen Brady, Leader of the Hull City Council, said:

"This is the first stage in a really ambitious bid to secure funding, put Hull on the map as Yorkshire's Maritime City and reinvigorate Hull's maritime heritage."

"At this stage, it is important for everyone to get behind the project. Local residents have a key role to play, helping to shape and develop the plans and show their support, which will hopefully help to secure the funding that is needed to make this exciting project a reality."

"This is about securing and safeguarding the long term future of some of Hull's most important attractions and ensuring we continue the work to make Hull a world-class visitor destination after 2017."

People can provide their feedback and complete the questionnaire via the Council's website www.hullcc.gov.uk/consultations.

Copies are also available in museums, libraries and customer service centres.

Credit Union - help to manage your money

Hull & East Yorkshire Credit Union is satisfying an increased demand for affordable credit as people turn away from high cost lenders such as payday lenders, doorstep credit firms and high street loan shops. Between January and April this year the amount of money lent by the Credit Union was 36% higher than in the same period of 2015.

Credit unions have a legal cap on interest charges (currently 3% per month) which means that someone borrowing £400 over a year can save as much as £250 in charges compared to the same loan taken out with a well-known doorstep lender. They also provide very competitive larger loans, with the best rate on loans of £5,000 and over currently at 3.5% APR.

John Smith, the Credit Union's Chief Executive, believes this shows a higher awareness of credit unions and their purpose:

"More city residents are coming to us when they need to borrow and they seem more aware that the credit union is here to help them make the most of their money, not make money out of them. Lots of our members say they like to support our business because it is locally owned by and for the people of Hull and helps to keep money in our local economy.

ONE Humber helps reduce isolation

One Humber is a local charity that works to help and support marginalised and isolated residents, to make sure that their voices are heard by public services. They have launched two new networks for local people:

- The Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Trans (LGBT) Social Network aims to tackle isolation within Hull's LGBT community and was launched with the help of Hull CCG funding. Led by Andy Train, chairman of the Hull and East Riding LGBT Forum, they meet every month at a safe space in Hull for coffee and cake. There are also trips and events organised by the members in between the monthly meetings.
- The Black and Minority Ethnic (BME) Network has been set up to support residents from these groups to access services, access opportunities to learn English and reduce social isolation. It is hoped that there will be a monthly social event as well as other activities.

If you are interested in joining any of these networks please contact 01482 427 058 or email info@onehumber.org for more information.
